Queen's College is built in the section of the University Reserve granted by the Government to the Wesleyan Church in the Act of Incorporation of 1853, and is open to Students of either sex, without regard to their religious belief.

The Conference first appointed a Committee to arrange for the building of the College in 1878. Steps were at once taken to secure donations for this object, and a generous response was made, the first donor being Sir William McArthur, of London, who presented £1,000 to the Committee. But it was considered essential that the College should be opened free from debt, and as the amounts promised were not sufficient to cover the estimated expense, the matter was allowed to stand over until 1887, when, the Conference having voted a sum of £13,000 from the Jubilee Fund for the College, it was decided to build it at once. Accordingly, on Thursday, the 16th of June, 1887, the memorial stone was laid by His Excellency Sir H. B. Loch, K.C.M.G., &c., the Governor of the Colony, by whom the College was formally opened on 14th March, 1888. On the previous day the Building Committee held its final meeting, and passed a vote of thanks to the Rev. W. A. Quick, whose strenuous and indefatigable efforts in the promotion of the scheme entitle him to the honour of being practically the founder of Queen's College.

On 7th October, 1889, the foundation stone of an extension of the College, including a large hall and rooms for thirteen students was laid by the Hon. the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, Sir Matthew Henry Davies. The building was completed during the long vacation and formally opened by Sir Matthew Davies on 2nd April, 1890, when £1,400 was raised towards the Building Fund, including donations of £500 each from Sir Matthew and Lady Davies.

All the rooms have been furnished by the Council, and each Student is provided with a separate bedroom and sitting-room.

A Lawn Tennis Court and Reading Room have also been provided, and handed over to the management of the Students.

COLLEGE LECTURES.

Lectures are delivered in the College on the chief subjects of the University Examinations. Most of the Lectures are given in the evening, so as not to interfere with the attendance of Students at the University Classes, and they are open to non-resident as well as resident Students.
For the present, the Lectures in Chemistry, Biology, and Histology will be given in the Laboratory of Trinity; and those in Classics at Ormond. The following are the Courses arranged for:
